1 Welcome to ASNA 2012

Dear conference participants

Welcome to the 9th conference on Applications of Social Network Analysis (ASNA 2012) in Zurich. ASNA 2012 will take place in a building of the North Campus of the University of Zurich in Oerlikon (same place as last year). The conference is supported by the Swiss National Science Foundation (SNF), in particular by its SCOPES funding scheme allowing eight East European scholars to present their work at ASNA, as well as by the Association of Non-Professorial Academic Staff, University of Zurich (VAUZ).

We are proud to host several SNA methods and software workshops, keynotes by Prof. Dirk Helbing and Prof. John Skvoretz, and around 60 full papers or presentations.

As is now the custom we will welcome presenters and participants from all around the globe, from various scientific backgrounds and at different career stages. Papers and presentations clearly demonstrate the interdisciplinary nature of social network analysis.

We start the conference with an informal gathering, our Get Together on Wednesday evening and will meet once more on the ETH Zurich roof top terrace for the conference dinner on Thursday. We then close our conference with a farewell reception and a guided city tour through one of the most vibrant parts of Zurich on Friday. Last but not least, please make room in your diaries for ASNA 2013, our tenth edition which will take place early in September 2013.

FuturICT – Global Participatory Computing for Our Complex World

The ultimate goal of the FuturICT flagship project is to understand and manage complex, global, socially interactive systems, with a focus on sustainability and resilience. Revealing the hidden laws and processes underlying societies probably constitutes the most pressing scientific grand challenge of our century and is equally important for the development of novel robust, trustworthy and adaptive information and communication technologies (ICT), based on socially inspired approaches. Integrating ICT, Complexity Science and the Social Sciences will create a paradigm shift, facilitating a symbiotic co-evolution of ICT and society. Data from our complex globe-spanning ICT system will be leveraged to develop models of techno-socio-economic systems. In turn, insights from these models will inform the development of a new generation of socially adaptive, self-organized ICT systems. FuturICT as a whole will act as a Knowledge Accelerator, turning massive data into knowledge and technological progress. In this way, FuturICT will create the scientific methods and ICT platforms needed to address planetary-scale challenges and opportunities in the 21st century. Specifically, FuturICT will build a sophisticated simulation, visualization and participation platform, called the Living Earth Platform. This platform will power Crisis Observatories, to detect and mitigate crises, and Participatory Platforms, to support the decision-making of policy-makers, managers, and citizens.

Diversity, Integration, and Networks – Attraction vs Repulsion as Drivers of Interethnic and Intergroup Relations

Interethnic and intergroup social ties are critical to knitting together increasingly diverse societies into cohesive wholes. Yet their formation faces the homophily hurdle: the tendency for important and intimate social ties to be disproportionately between those sharing significant social attributes. In the spirit of analytical sociology as applied to the formation of social ties in networks, I explore two mechanisms that could drive intergroup relations: attraction to similar vs repulsion from dissimilar others. The models differ in predictions as illustrated by data on interethnic marriages in Britain and the USA, on USA dating and cohabitation relations by religion and education, on educational diversity in marriages in 24 EU countries, and on native and foreign born marriages in Austria. Analyses suggest that repulsion provides the better account for ascribed dimensions while attraction fits better data for achieved dimensions. I conclude with a discussion of the implications for the social integration of diverse modern societies through their relational structures.

4.3 Guidelines for Presenters, Discussants and Session Chairs

ASNA 2012 offers two types of presentations: Standard presentations and full paper presentations. Standard presentations have a total of 15 minutes and the session chairs are asked to stop presenters after 12 minutes to have 3 minutes for questions. Full paper presentations have a total of 30 minutes available. Presentations should not exceed 20 minutes to allow the discussant to provide feedback (5 minutes) and take some questions from the audience (5 minutes). We ask all presenters to copy their presentation on the computer before the session starts.

All presenters of full papers are assigned as discussant to one other paper. Please check the conference program to find out which paper has been assigned to you. Your role as a discussant is the following:

- Download and read the paper you are assigned to.
- Prepare to give a valuable feedback to the presenter.
- You may use the laptop and a short presentation if necessary to illustrate your arguments.
- Limit your feedback to maximum 5 minutes to keep some time for questions of the audience.

Every session is chaired. The minimum requirement for a session chair is to shortly announce the presenter and make sure that every presenter holds on to the time table. Additionally you have the opportunity to bring in some extra flavor to the session. Read the papers in advance and prepare some extra questions. Connect the different presentations by a red line. What do the papers have in common? What are the differences? You may add some concluding remarks at the end of the session or start a concluding discussion. Feel free to make it the best session you have ever attended.

Session chairs are asked to stick to the time table as published in the program (also in case a presentation stops early or a presentation is skipped entirely).

5 Conference Publication

A selection of papers presented at ASNA 2012 can be published in the peer reviewed journal Procedia - Social and Behavioral Sciences (Elsevier). All full paper presenters are invited to submit a (revised) version of their conference paper or serve as a reviewer. By submitting your paper you agree to act as a reviewer for max. two other papers.

The journal will be published in 2012 by Elsevier and is edited by members of the conference committee.

Deadlines for the ASNA 2012 conference publication:

- September 30, 2012: Send a short note to info@asna.ch if you are interested in publishing your paper in the conference proceedings.
- November 30, 2012: Submission of the (revised) conference paper as pdf (information about further format guidelines will provided by e-mail)
- January 31, 2013: Deadline for reviewers
- February 28, 2013: Paper givers receive the feedback of the editor
- April 30, 2013: Deadline for submission of the (revised) final papers
- Mai/June 2013: Publication
